To Spend or Not to Spend....

For a lot of us, we spent or are spending the majority of our working years tucking money away for retirement. What we don't necessarily think about, is that there is a possibility that we may need to spend our money on services such as homecare, chore services, home repairs/modifications to accommodate an unforeseen disability, assisted living, etc.

It is amazing though how even one small service such as cleaning assistance or Meals on Wheels, can make all the difference in someone's life and not take a huge toll on the pocket book. Options Counselors at the Aging & Disability Resource Center are available to assist you with weighing your options and possible costs associated with various services to help you decide how to spend your well-earned dollars.

So to answer the question, "to spend or not to spend"...spend wisely and don't be afraid to pay for the help you need. Being a consumer of healthcare related services is the same as being a consumer of anything else. Healthcare related services come at a wide array of costs. Rates depend on so many different factors, that it is very important to "shop around" and be extremely honest with providers as to what help you are looking for. The Aging & Disability Resource Center can support you through making those choices when the time comes; we're just a phone call away!

Approximate costs for various services:

Aging & Disability Resource Center Options Counseling - no charge

Meals on Wheels—$3.75 per meal donation

Lifeline - $25-$45 per month

Housekeeping—$10-$20 per hour

Home health aide—$20-$35 per hour

Assisted living—$1500-$5000 per month

Rates may vary even more depending on private, independent providers vs. agency providers
